

Write More | Bring your Writing to Life | Engage in Meaningful Conversation

For Anyone Who Has Said... "I want to write."

The words are in there. They float around in your mind, in your heart, wanting to come out. Maybe you have put mind to ink already. Or, maybe you hesitate, thinking "I'm not that creative". You are. Creative. We all are creative. But we often hesitate and hold back because we've been trained that way. Yet, the creative impulse is alive in all of us.

For anyone who has said, "I want to write," Viva ScribaVox invites you to do just that...write. Write more. Write what you have to say - want to say - need to say. And, share it with others. Anything qualifies: poetry, journaling, story, reporting, business communications, etc.

Viva ScribaVox™ is...

Viva ScribaVox (VSV) is a unique approach to a writing group. Our intent is to encourage writing and to create a safe space for you to freely express your creative urge, experiment with what you are compelled to say, connect with others who desire to create and learn from each other.

Viva ScribaVox™ is not...

The VSV program is NOT about critiquing your writing, teaching you a pre-defined structure for writing, honing it for publication or improving technical writing.

"My time with Viva ScribaVox was, in a word, amazing! The environment was positive and supportive, the conversations were rich and engaging, and confidence in my writing abilities improved dramatically. One of the really exciting things was how Laura and Cindy heard things in what I had written that never would have occurred to me, and vice versa. This led to a wildfire of rich and dynamic learning for all of us, where Scriba Vox (putting voice to our writing) created the heat, and our joint commitment to creating and sustaining a positive and supportive sharing environment the fuel. This combination allowed for the emergence of that magical spark, bringing Scriba Vox to life (Viva)."

~Megan Rounds, former Scriba Diva.

Please join us in this pilot program and take with you:

- a collection of written work
- new insights
- new connections and maybe even some new friends

Give Voice to the Writings of Life™

In 2010, out of our desire to simply write more, my friend and colleague, Cindy, and I decided to hold each other accountable to write. That was our only initial intent. The first meeting to share our writing sparked deep and meaningful conversations.

We want to share the VSV process and intentionality with you. If you want to write or write more, the VSV program holds you accountable to both write and share your creative impulse with others. When you participate in a VSV program, you:

- Express your creative self in written and spoken words
- Feel heard
- Feel connected
- Engage in meaningful conversation
- Learn about yourself and others

A key component of the VSV program is that participants voice their writing because:

- Voicing our writing brings the writing to life
- Voicing our writing brings emotions alive
- Voicing our writing allows the words to be reflected back in revealing and different ways
